GEHRINGER AND AUGUSTIEN WIN

"Well done, thou good and faithful servant," was the pronouncement of the voters in the school election throughout the local school districts on last Friday. Adolph Gehringer was returned to the Jefferson Union High School Board of Trustees by a vote of 867 as against 711 for his opponent, and George R. Augustien was returned to the Jefferson Grammar School Board by a vote of 907 as against 389 for his opponent.

In both cases the good people of Daly City showed their appreciation of honest and earnest work done by their public officials.

The results of Friday's election were a victory not only for Adolph Gehringer and George R. Augustien personally, but also for efficiency in the conduct of the affairs of the local high school and grammar school districts.

The vote was the heaviest cast at any school election since the location of the high school site was determined. The weather was perfect, and friends of the several candidates kept a continual stream of autos going to and from the polls throughout the entire day.

Following is a tabulated statement of the votes cast in the several precincts:

| | Gehringer | Pauw |
| Daly City | 737 | 585 |
| Visitacion Valley | 46 | 46 |
| Brisbane | 28 | 33 |
| Rockaway Beach | 21 | 2 |
| San Pedro | 35 | 45 |
| Totals | 867 | 711 |
| | Augustien | Callan |

MAYOR TAKES REST ON DOCTOR'S ORDER

The popular Mayor of Daly City is much in demand, and especially at this season. The calls of business, the resposibility of public office and numerous philanthropic engagements combine to give the Mayor many glorious hours of crowded life. A certain friend of his was very anxious to have an interview last Wednesday afternoon and inquired diligently at the points where the Mayor is generally to be found, to learn at last that at the strict command of his physician —Dr. Emmet Allen—Mayor Smith had gone to the country for a few days' well-earned rest.

On March 12th the Mayor came home from the St. Francis Hospital after a serious operation. Two days later he presided at the regular meeting of the City Council. This was not at all in harmony with the wishes of his physician, who had hoped to keep him away from every form of work for at least four weeks, and had indeed prescribed complete rest in the hospital for that length of time. The abundant activity of Mayor Smith was not to be restrained, however, and though still a convalescent he plunged immediately into the full activity of his varied work.

Election campaigns have a way of multiplying cares and adding to the burdens of office, and although the conditions which accompany them are hardly helpful to the recuperative process, the Mayor insisted on taking his full share of duty. In all previous campaigns he has been a dynamo of energy and so far as his friends can determine, there has been no diminution of force or faltering of inspiration in his efforts since his return.

It is one of the penalties of popularity to be persistently sought after and repeatedly conscripted for public service. Prominent men are allowed but little time for relaxation, and during his convalescence the Mayor has been working fourteen hours a day to meet the insistent demands of his admirers and associates. Now, at last, his physician has called a halt and has issued an ultimatum to his patient to the effect that he must relinquish the burden of his duties for at least two weeks. The Mayor argued the case, insisting that he was able to carry on, but finally compromised with his medical adviser by agreeing to take a trip to the country for four or five days. Dr. Allen gave reluctant consent to this proposal, but insisted that this brief vacation be regared as the first installment of a genuine holiday, the balance to be undertaken immediately after the municipal election.

The Mayor has therefore unwillingly relinquished his cares and problems for a few days and has gone to the country under orders. He will return to the city early next week, when his friends will have the benefit of his wise counsel and the inspiration of his presence during the stirring events of this important season. When "the tumult and the shouting die" and the last vote is tabulated, he plans to take a vacation of the old-

ROBBERS SECURE GROCERY SUPPLY

Robbers for the second time broke into the MacMarr store, located at 6073 Mission street, opposite Rice street. The burglars entered the store by breaking the plate glass front door. After having helped themselves to about $50 worth of assorted groceries, hams and fruit, they made their escape without being detected.

The robbery was reported to Chief of Police John T. Doyle by Officers Hilton and Sunderland, who made the discovery while patrolling the district. Mrs. R. Brosman, of San Diego avenue, the clerk who had been on duty the night of March 23, said she had locked the store at 8:30 that night.

The untidy appearance of the store indicated that the robbers were in a hurry, and it was evident that the robbery took place between 8:30 and the evening and 2:30 the next morning, when the discovery was made by the officers.

LEGION TO ASSIST IN TREE PLANTING

Members of Daly City Post No. 410, American Legion, will participate in the tree planting ceremony to be held next Sunday, April 3, at the Municipal Waterworks, Niantic and Citrus avenues.

A total of 43,045 World war veterans are now under government hospital treatment, according to a report from the Veterans' administration. The compilation was under date of January, 1932, and showed the following classification: Tuberculosis, 7,574; nervous and mental, 18,875; and general medical and surgical, 16,596.

Asserting the "present defense of America is not only a crime, but a national disgrace," the national defense committee of the American Legion sent to President Hoover a resolution demanding the Navy be built up to London treaty limits and the Army be increased to 14,000 officers and 165,000 enlisted men. It said: "The so-called hand of economy has placed its fingers upon the throat of our Army and Navy and is slowly strangling them to death. The resolution added that the United States Army does not equal the small military force allowed defeated Germany, and continues: "Forces are at work within and without our country seeking to weaken and destroy our military strength and make our nation a helpless, physical bankrupt."

In addition to taking a firm and aggressive stand for an enlarged Army and Navy, the committee which drafted the resolution said the Legion would resist any proposed reduction in the present commissioned personnel of the Army. It also opposes any reduction in appropriations for the National Guard, the R. O. T. C. units, C. M. T. A. units and the organized reserve.

The great principals on which the American Legion is founded can only be fulfilled when every member thereof realizes that it is their individual and collective obligation to see that these purposes are accomplished.

The program of Americanization and good citizenship sponsored by the Legion must be carried out by individuals. To carry out such a program every Legionnaire should interest himself in all matters pertaining to good government and should exercise his priceless privilege of going to the polls and expressing his preference in candidates for public office, on whose shoulders the burden of government shall rest. He shall do all in his power to see that his neighbors and associates shall also realize that they must exercise the rights for which so many gallant Americans have fought and died, but which rights are so often forgotten and neglected after they have been secured.

The American Legion can not take a stand on political questions, but it is a sacred obligation of every Legionnaire to assume this as an individual obligation. Inform yourself and then inform others on matters of political importance. Be prepared to cast an intelligent vote when you go to the polls, and assist your friends and neighbors in doing the same.

BRISBANE NOTES

The members of the Brisbane Parent-Teachers' Association staged an easter egg hunt in Brisbane on Easter Sunday. Thirty-two dozen hard-boiled dyed eggs were donated by the Brisbane Unit, the Community Club, and neighbors, and 500 candy eggs.

Young and old enjoyed a day's outing. Mrs. L. W. Prestidge, president of the Brisbane Unit, was in charge of the arrangements.

A whist party will be held for the Unit at the home of Mrs. P. A. Lyons on Tuesday, April 5, and all are cordially invited to attend.

BODIEN AND SUNDERMANN ATTEND TO BUSINESS; KNOW THEIR JOB

The outstanding topic of discussion in Daly City at this time is the approaching city election, which will be held on April 11. It is the subject of conversation in almost every home and place of business, and the people seem stirred to great interest in the issues involved in this particular contest. The importance of the occasion appears to have expanded in direct proportion to the progress of the city. We all feel that a community which has moved forward so rapidly and which has so firmly consolidated its advance should now emerge from the stage of petty politics. Matters of the highest importance are involved in the city's impending choice for Councilmen.

The Record has already declared itself emphatically for the two worthy incumbents—Arthur J. Bodien and Henry Sundermann. Our preference for these two candidates is not based upon partiality or friendship, nor is it influenced by any feeling of prejudice against other candidates. Our endorsement is supported by facts, collected from the experience of years, and we are fortunately able to present unanswerable arguments in favor of the men of our choice. It is the easiest thing in the world to recommend a man in general terms because of personal friendship or social considerations, but such an endorsement does not make a convincing appeal to public judgment. When we support two men for important public office we must be prepared to offer good logical reasons for the stand we take, and definite evidence to make good the claims we advance.

When we elect two men to serve on our City Council, we are entrusting to them the management of important matters which directly affect us all. The value of the property we own, the enactment of ordinances working for the general benefit, the regulation of city conduct and the safeguarding of the rights of the taxpayers are all involved in the duties of City Councilmen. It is imperative, therefore, that we examine very carefully the qualifications of the men who aspire to this great responsibility.

It has been the endeavor in these columns to demonstrate that Arthur J. Bodien and Henry Sundermann stand out in this election campaign as being pre-eminently qualified to serve the people on the City Council. We proceed to offer some of the reasons why these two men should be returned to office.

They Attend to Business

In their service of the city, Councilmen Bodien and Sundermann have never watched the time clock. Most of their spare time has been devoted to the interests of the taxpayers. Not only have they been in regular attendance at the meetings of the Council, but they have also been found at the City Hall or in some other city department on Sundays and holidays, whenever occasion demanded. They could not have been more earnest or reliable in any private enterprise than they have been in their attention to city business. The claims of their work as Councilmen have frequently reached them in the privacy of their homes, and there is no case on record where they have failed to respond to the call.

They Know Their Job

Many a cause has been lost by the application of enthusiasm without intelligence. It is not enough for a man to be anxious to serve, he must also know how it should be done. We are satisfied that these two men thoroughly understand the requirements of their position. They have arrived at this knowledge through years of careful study and direct experience of municipal problems. They are familiar with governmental procedure and are accustomed to dealing with situations of broader scope than come within the experience of the ordinary citizen. They are fully informed on every phase of municipal activity, and keep their knowledge up to date by a thoughtful survey of progress in other communities.

They Work For Progress

They are as warmly interested in the welfare of the city as any citizen who will be given the opportunity to vote for them. Any reasonable man will believe that two men who have been residents and taxpayers for twenty-five years must have a genuine interest in their own community. When they first came here they cherished the vision of a prosperous city and have worked continuously to bring it to pass. They are as anxious for progress as any of us can be, and all their actions have gone to prove the utter sincerity of their motives. Their aim has been to develop a better city, and in view of results it will be admitted that they have succeeded.

They Are Always Reliable

Many of us have known both gentlemen for many years and have always found them the same. The character appeal in home communities is usually the first consideration. We have associated with both of them in lodge meetings and social functions, we have worked shoulder to shoulder with them in various civic activities, and know them to be honest, clean and reliable in every respect. No criticism has been aimed at the character of either candidate throughout all the political contests in which they have participated. The people of Daly City have always trusted and respected them. In election time the life of the candidate is subjected to the closest and most pitiless scrutiny, but not one discreditable feature has been found in the record of Arthur J. Bodien and Henry Sundermann. The only charge against them that we have been able to discover is that they are ardent supporters of harmonious government.

They Are Friends of the People

Every public official must be accessible at all times to the people whom he represents. He is constantly beset with inquiries and requests. Some of these are not reasonable and must be rejected, but Mr. Bodien and Mr. Sundermann have always exhibited patience and consideration in their attitude towards the public. They have given a courteous hearing, both in the City Hall and elsewhere, to all citizens who brought their difficulties to them for discussion. It has not always been possible to approve the proffered proposals, but whenever they were practical and helpful to the city they have been given earnest consideration. These two candidates have taken part willingly and cordially in every social endeavor which they could attend and have revealed a fine spirit of good fellowship on every occasion. They have never assumed the aloofness of the professional politician, nor have they felt that the dignity of their office separated them in any way from their fellow citizens. They have been truly the people's men, and are always ready to give a sympathetic hearing to those who have problems or suggestions.

Their City Needs Them

They stand today in the noon-time of their usefulness. There never was a period when they could be of greater service to their city and there never was a season when their city needed them more. The events of the last ten years have placed Daly City in the forefront of comparative municipalities. Enlarged responsibilities have come with wider development. The need of the hour in our city government is for men with the training and background of Councilmen Bodien and Sundermann. Both are in the very prime of life, both are active, healthy and energetic. Their years of service have fitted them for expanding responsibility and they have moved upward in thought and ideals as the development of the city has progressed.

This is No Experiment

To retain Arthur J. Bodien and Henry Sundermann as City Councilmen will be no experiment. It will rather be the reiteration of a conviction expressed at the polls on several occasions by the voters—that they are the best men for the job. It will be a vote of confidence for two public officials who have earned it, and for the splendid city administration in which they have taken a distinguished part. It will be conclusive indication that the people of Daly City correctly appraise upright and progressive public service and that they are determined to avail themselves of such usefulness in the years to come. Experience has proved them valuable, criticism has failed to reach them, and the hearty support of the voters of Daly City is respectfully requested for Arthur J. Bodien and Henry Sundermann at the city election on Monday, April 11.

COUNCIL HONORS PIONEER FIREMAN

There was a regular meeting of the City Council last Monday evening, March 28, all members answering the roll call and Mayor H. H. Smith presiding.

The street committee reported on the automobile parking space problem of the business district, and said that a full report would be submitted at the next regular meeting of the City Council.

The Park committee invites every one to be present next Sunday at the tree planting, which will take place on the ground adjoining the pumphouse, at Citrus and Niantic avenues. Members of the different organizations will be present, and it will be in order to anyone to donate a tree, if they so wish. These trees will later be moved to the City Park.

A communication was received from 108 Los Olivos avenue, asking for a permit to sell kerosene. This matter was referred to the Chief of the Fire Department for investigation.

The poundmaster's report was read and ordered filed.

The monthly bills were read and ordered paid.

The Council then adjourned out of respect to one ofthe oldest members of the Fire Department, Aneglo Selmi, who passed away March 26. Mr. Selmi was one of the oldest residents of Daly City, and was held in the greatest respect by all who knew him. He was a good and faithful fireman.

A. SELMI, PIONEER RESIDENT OF DALY CITY, PASSES ON

The many friends of Angelo Selmi, of Mission street, were shocked to hear of his sudden death in St. Luke's Hospital, last Saturday. Mr. Selmi had been quite ill for some time, but the end came as a great shock to his many friends.

Mr. Selmi leaves a wife and grown family to mourn his passing. He was a pioneer resident of this district, and was a member of Colma-Vista Grande Aerie of Eagles, No. 1848, the Veteran Firemen's Association of Daly City, and Daly City Fire Department No. 3.

Services were held by the Eagles at 8 o'clock last Monday night, and by the Veteran Firemen's Association on Tuesday morning at 8:45 o'clock. The funeral was conducted from the mortuary chapel of W. C. Lasswell & Co., last Tuesday morning at 9:15 o'clock, thence to Our Lady of Perpetual Help church, where a requiem high mass was celebrated at 9:30 o'clock for the repose of his soul. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery.

LOCAL YOUNG COUPLE UNITED IN MARRIAGE ON EASTER

A very beautiful wedding ceremony was perfored at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Gilmore, of 170 Woodrow street, last Sunday, when Miss Petrina Passafiume became the bride of Mr. Floyd Gilmore, Father Doyle performing the ceremony, in the presence of a number of relatives and friends of the bride and groom. An altar had been built in the living room, covered with white crepe paper, Easter lillies, greens and gladiolis, making a pretty setting for the union of the young couple. After a few days spent in this vicinity, the newlyweds will honeymoon in Northern California, and upon their return will make their home near Santa Rosa.

WILL PLANT TREES SUNDAY MORNING

On next Sunday, April 3rd, at 12 o'clock noon, various organizations of Daly City will gather at the Municipal Waterworks, Niantic and Citrus avenues, for the purpose of planting a nnumber of trees in commemoration of the bi-centennial anniversary of George Washington's birth.

As this will be a community celebration, a number of local organizations have already expressed their intention of participating in this event. Among those who have already signified their desire to take part in the ceremony are the American Legion Post, No. 410, and their Auxiliary; Old Glory Post No. 2044, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and their Auxiliary; the local order of Eagles and their popular band; the Native Sons and Native Daughters of El Carmelo Parlor; Veteran Firemen, Daly City Fire Department, Colma Fire Department, Company No. 6, Daly City Police Department, Daly City City Council; and it is expected that several other organizations, who have not yet completed their plans for this celebration, will notify the committee of their intention to take part before the end of the week.

All organizations and individuals are invited to join in this celebration, and are requested to have the members of their committees meet with Mr. Bodien, chairman of arrangements, who will be at the site of the tree planting, Niantic and Citrus avenues, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock to complete final details for the dedication.

A large plot of ground has been staked off adjacent to the waterworks, and such trees as are planted next Sunday, or any future date, will be permitted to remain in this location until the City Park is ready for their reception.

Friday evening, April 8, the Boy Scouts of this district will hold their first rally in the auditorium of the Jefferson Union high school. The population of Daly City is cordially invited to attend this wonderful pageant, which will be presented entirely by members of the Boy Scouts. Remember, your boy is proud of the Boy Scouts, and welcomes the opportunity of showing you and his neighbors what is being achieved by the Scout movement. Everybody welcome. Admission free.

TANFORAN RACES DRAW BIG CROWDS

Once again the sport of kings is thrilling thousands of Northern California racing fans at Tanforan. The fourth meeting of the Pacific Coast Breeders Association, lasting thirty-nine days, got under way yesterday, Thursday, March 31.

The meeting this spring is the second of its kind, spring racing being inaugurated in 1930. Under the direction of Judge Joseph A. Murphy, noted turf official, the Pacific Breeders moved into action the fall of 1929, bringing to the state the sport of the blueblooded thoroughbreds in it highest quality and most wholesome flavor.

This season, above all, the sport at Tanforan should be the best. At no time has the picturesque peninsula course enjoyed the presence of such a collection of thoroughbred stars. Heroes of the handicap division, outstanding in 1931-32 winter racing, are stabled at Tanforan to compete in the six major stakes of the meeting.

And while the meeting is in its infancy at the San Bruno oval, officials of the Pacific Coast Breeders Association are making every possible effort to bring Phar Lap, Australia's wonder horse, into action here. The decision rests with David J. Davis of San Francisco, owner of Phar Lap. Davis has promised Tanforan officials the red horse will be at San Bruno. But whether or not Phar Lap, winner on March 20 of the Agua Caliente handicap, will run is the big question.

A purse of $25,000 has been offered for a special race wherein Phar Lap would perform against actual combatants before San Francisco and northern California fans. The race, although not officially decided, would be at one and one quarter miles or a bit further. Distance is the long suit of the Anzac antelope.

California sportsmen who are represented at Tanforan by powerful stables and outstanding handicap stars, are eager to test the mettle of the Australian champion. One in particular is Norman W. Church, owner of the Northway Stable. Church's big ace, Plucky Play, winner in 1931 of approximately $86,000 and conqueror of the mighty Sun Beau, world's leading money winner, is in training for such a race. Trainer E. L. "Woody" Fitzgerald has been preparing the mighty northerner for efforts at Tanforan and then in the east. If Phar Lap's owner is willing to show the red horse at Tanforan, Plucky Play will go forth as the champion of United States against the meteor of Australia.

And Plucky Play will not be alone in his challenge to Phar Lap. Benny Creech's Dr. Freeland will be tried again in a race with Phar Lap. The Australian easily cuffed Dr. Freeland in the Mexican melee. Samuel H. Lee's Joe Flores is another willing to tackle the Australian once more. Joe Flores finished fourth to Phar Lap in the Caliente tilt. John W. Marchbank's De Swasey and Mopeco, the steelhearted Frenchman able to run all day long; A. A. Baroni's glorified plater, Wirt G. Bowman; Chaffee Earl's Jim Dandy, Raoul Walsh's Border Warrant, an Irishman making ready for his debut in the United States at Tanforan. Many others are keen for the struggle and the moment the owner of Phar Lap decides $25,000 is not such a bad sum to go after with a wonder horse, these will be ready to go.

With rapid succession the Breeders Association will offer its six stakes schedule. On Saturday, April 9, the first of the handicaps, the Tanforan Spring Special, will be run and then will follow the Derby Candidates on March 16, Governor Rolph on April 23, Bay Area on April 30, Cakland on May 7, and the meet is concluded with the Au Revoir on May 14. The Governor Rolph, with which event the Breeders crown their meeting, is the gala skirmish of the season. On this day Tanforan declares a holiday and so does the bay area. The race carries $2,000 in added money and is over one and one-eighth miles of ground.

LEGION TO DEVOTE APRIL TO FOREIGN RELATIONS STUDY

The month of April is to be devoted to the study of foreign relations by the 450 American Legion Posts in this state according to an announcement made by Van Hogan, state commander. The study plan will be under the directions of B. W. Gearhart, of Fresno, past state commander, chairman of the foreign relations committee.

A definite policy for every Legion post to set aside a certain period each year to give its attention and consideration to the study of international relations was adopted at the national convention of the organization held in Boston two years ago. At Detroit last year the convention decided that this year the period would be devoted to the mechanics, purpose and program of the Fidac, the international organization of veterans of the World War. Posts are to be supplied with a special study pamphlet containing information on the Fidac and Foreign Relations.

WATER COMPANY GRANTED PERMISSION TO SELL BONDS

The Railroad Commission has approved an application from Hillsborough Water Company, operating in the town of Hillsborough, San Mateo county, asking authority to issue and sell $12,000 of first mortgage bonds to be sold at not less than 90 per cent of their par value. The proceeds are to be used in paying for the installation of a filtration system recently ordered by the Railroad Commission. The application also asks that the company be authorized to assume an indebtedness of $3,000 on property purchased for the filtration plant site and for rights of way.

COMMANDER VISITS OLD GLORY POST

Last Friday, March 25, Old Glory Post No. 2044, Veterans of Foreign Wars, was honored with the presence of National Commander-in-Chief Darold D. DeCoe, and National Senior Vice-President of Auxiliaries, Sister DeCoe. The members of the Post regret the fact that sufficient time was not permitted in which the notify the entire membership of the intended visit, in order that all might have had an opportunity to be present and hear the Commander-in-Chief's message.

After extending this distinguished personage a true V. F. W. welcome, he was escorted to the Commander's station and placed in a seat of honor. He was accompanied by National Aide-de-Camp Stewart and the Commander of Sacramento Post.

A snappy business meeting was then carried on, during which many important issues were discussed and acted upon. The degree team, under the guidance of Captain Joseph Bedford, exemplified the ceremonial of the order in obligating a few new recruits. They were highly complimented for their deliverance and team work by the National Commander, who was very sincere in his remarks.

After the meeting the Post was joined by the Auxiliary to pay homage to the nationally known guests. Commander-in-Chief DeCoe, an able speaker, talked at length on the bill now before Congress, known as House Resolution No. 1, introduced by Senator Patman of Texas, calling for the immediate cash payment of the "soldier's bonus." He gave the members every assurance that the bill would be passed; that the national legislative committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars had been assured of sufficient support for the measure to pass the House and Senate within a short period of time. He further outlined the plan which the government could adopt to provide the necessary funds with which to meet the payment of the bonus.

Immediately following the adjournment of the meeting, the guests were escorted to the banquet hall, where they were served delicious refreshments, consisting of coffee, sandwiches and hame-made cake, such as only the ladies of the Auxiliary know how to make.

We again take this opportunity to direct your attention to the dance to be sponsored by Old Glory Post, in the auditorium of the City Hall, tomorrow evening, April 2. Music by Del's accordion band.

fashioned kind, but we have our doubts as to whether or not he will remain away from the city very long even at that time. He is so earnestly devoted to his work in the community where all his interests center that he seems to begrudge any time that is spent elsewhere. We venture to state that even now, out in the wide open spaces, his thoughts are directed to happenings in Daly City. He is, however, happily free for the moment from the constant strain of interviews and discussions, and we are confident that he will derive great benefit from the respite of these few days.

In his absence we can say what we like about him, and we are glad of the opportunity to express sincere admiration for our popular Mayor. When we remember what he has accomplished during his years of public service we realize, in some measure, his value to this community. By diligent perseverance he has built up his own successful organization and has dedicated, in equal degree, the guidance of his genius and the inspiration of his personality to the development of the city. We heartily hope that the present brief rest and the longer vacation to be taken later will re-esablish him in perfect health and vigor.

ACTIVITIES OF OLD GLORY AUXILIARY

When Old Glory Auxiliary No. 2044 entertained at the Red Cross Hut at the Presidio, on March 16, everyone who took part had a most splendid time. Those who did not go the last time should try and be there next time. Those in the group who entertained on the 16th were President Ethel Dorn, Junior Vice-President Blanche Allen, Caroline De Vanie, Stella Bedford, Elsie Lewis, Louise Crowley, Helen Erwin, Marie Nylund, Doris Pangburn. Accompanying the Auxiliary members were Commander Dorn, Comrades Allen, De Vanie and Bedford, also Mrs. George E. Brady, Mrs. William Henderson and Mrs. Curtis Teal.

Now don't forget, you members, that while giving pleasure by going with the rest of us, you will have a good time yourself.

The date of the next visit to the Red Cross Hut will be given later.

The ways and means committee held their regular meeting on Monday, March 28, at the home of Mrs. John Cosbie, on Bellevue avenue. Those of the committee attending were Chairman Helen Erwin, Della Campbell, President Ethel Dorn, Louise and Olivia Refatti, Louise Crowley, Edna Cosbie and Doris Pangburn.

DALY CITY BOY SCOUTS

In a desire to inform the people of this city just what is doing among the Boy Scouts and Cubs of Daly City this paper will publish from now on a column known as B. S. A. Notes.

It is the earnest desire of the several Scoutmasters of this city to have the parents know exactly what their boy is doing.

Easter Sunday thirty-eight Scouts and Cubs left Daly City at 4 A. M. to assist in the Mt. Davidson service. The boys, though, were keenly disappointed that none of the local council were present.

The junior officers, namely, Lorne Campbell, Walter Hanschen and Harry Wilson, having been doing very well and have been of much assistance to the Scoutmasters.

Troop 149 will celebrate its seventh anniversary next month with an inter-patrol field day, at which time the competition is expected to be very close.

The patrol making the greatest advancement in Troop 148 will spend one Saturday and Sunday next month at "Camp Snipe."

Troop 148, which was organized only three months ago, now has twenty members enrolled, but Mr. Brauns says there is still room for several more new boys.

Scout Utman of Troop 149 spent a part of his Easter vacation at the Boy Scout Camp located on Mt. Tamalpais.

Both the Cub Packs, namely, Packs 34 and 36, under the leadership of Mr. Bradford and Mr. Olson, are making very good progress and are nearing the quota of membership faster than the Boy Scouts.

A parents' night will be held by the entire membership of the two Scout troops and the two Cub packs. The date for this rally will be announced in a future column.

At a meeting of the Monrovia Foothill Garden Club at the Little Studio art gallery, Gold Hill, it was decided to enlarge the service membership and ideas of the club. Plans for the flower show in May were discussed and M. Langlie was chosen as chairman of the flower show committee. President Fred Schwartz presided.

A State-wide drive to round up real estate men operating without State license has been launched by the State Real Estate Department. Deputy Commissioner T. A. Kelly said the number of licensed brokers has dropped from 18,000 to 15,000 since 1928, while salesmen have decreased from 47,000 to 9,000.

California ranks fourth among all states in the nation in the volume of dairy products manufactured during the past year, it was announced by the California Dairy Council. A national survey showed that while California is listed fourteenth in the number of dairy cows, it is surpassed only by Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa in production of manufactured dairy products.

A plan for the realignment and improvement of the Jack Rabbit Trail, a winding and hilly section of the highway which connects the western portion of Riverside county as well as the Imperial Valley, was inaugurated at Indio, with the organization of the Jack Rabbit Trail Association. Thomas H. Rosenberger was made president, Charles H. Jones, vice-president, and A. L. Wood, secretary.

Funds of the State Highway Commission may legally be used to carry out a State-wide grade crossing survey ordered at the last session of the legislature, according to Attorney General U. S. Webb. Webb held, however, that gasoline tax money cannot be used for the survey, which is to be carried out jointly by the State Department of Public Works and the Railroad Commission.

Contracts for $278,370 of construction work have been awarded by the Navy's Bureau Yards and Docks. The largest contract, totaling $156,000 for two floating derricks to be located at Mare Island, San Francisco Bay, and San Diego, was awarded the R. W. Kaltenbach Corporation at Bedford, Oregon. A $20,746 contract for the San Diego naval air base lighting system was awarded to Bennett & Taylor of Los Angeles.

To pay for installation of a filtration system ordered by the Railroad Commission, the Hillsborough Water Company sought authority from the commission to issue and sell $15,000 of first mortgage bonds. They would be sold at not less than 90 per cent of par value. The company also wishes permission to assume a $3000 indebtedness on property purchased for the filtration plant and rights of way.

California's oil conservation controversy gained momentum when booklets containing arguments for and against the Sharkey oil control bill referendum, to be voted on at the May 3 special election, were issued by Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan. State Senators Will R. Sharkey, Martinez, and Ralph H. Clock, Long Beach, presented arguments favoring the measure, while Senator Ray Hays, Fresno, wrote for the opposition.

In order that the city of Inglewood may acquire water rights held by the American States Water Service Company, a survey is being compiled by city and company engineers as a basis of evaluation of the property.

An unsold issue of Modesto Irrigation District bonds, voted in the amount of $236,000 for the installation of new units at Don Pedro, cannot be destroyed without authorization of the district's citizens. This decision is given in a letter received by the district's directors from Harmon S. Bonte, executive secretary of the California Districts' Security Commission.

Complete regulation of weight requirements on highways for trucking concerns was urged at a recent hearing before the State Railroad Commission on transportation rates by C. L. Hammell, superintendent of traffic for the Railway Express Agency, Inc. Hammell also urged the commission to set up a special board of inquiry and investigation to devise means for regulation of the trucking forms.

Totaling $193,314, the February dairy income for Tulare district is slightly more than the $192,452 for January. This is the first February in three years to show an increase over the preceding January despite prices being down half a cent. Feed conditions are excellent. Prices at the plant during February averaged 32½ cents for Grade A milk, 29½ for Grade B, 24½ for sweet cream, 28½ for churning cream, compared to respective January prices of 32, 30, 26 and 25.

An increase of $1 per week in the salary paid printers in the State printing plant has been approved by State Director of Finance Vandegrift. He said the increase was necessary to comply with the legal requirement that the salaries paid the print-shop employes shall not be less than the average paid in job-printing shops of Sacramento, Los Angeles, Oakland and San Francisco. The printers will receive $51 a week under the new agreement and the increase will total $6000 a year.

The last of the Orange county navel crop is expected to be shipped within the next week or so, and opening of the Valencia season, possibly several weeks earlier than in the past, is anticipated, according to word from the Northern Orange County Citrus Exchange. Although the date of the opening of Valencia shipments is uncertain, due to maturing of the fruit and matter of clearing up navels on the market, which depends upon keeping qualities of the fruit, it will probably be some time in April.

Months of negotiations and arguments between San Diego and the San Diego Gas and Electric Company came to an end with the announcement of W. F. Raber, president of the utility company that arrangements have been completed whereby that city will be supplied with natural gas through mains from Long Beach, service to start not later than September 1, next. Construction of a twelve-inch main will be started immediately, Raber said. Arrangements for the service were completed between representatives of the local utility and of the Southern Counties Gas Company.

According to a recent report issued by the State Department of Education Los Angeles has spent $15,132,815 for current expenditures of its elementary schools during the last fiscal year, and $1,560,923.65 on capital outlay, new buildings and equipment. This made the total district expenditures amount to $16,693,738.81. Los Angeles spent $119.64 per pupil for current expenditures during the year, the department estimated, basing calculations on 126,488 average daily attendance. The capital outlay per pupil totaled $12.34, making the total for current expenses and outlay amount to $131.98 per pupil.

James Pearl, veteran San Francisco police sergeant who retired on pension six years ago, is on his way to wealth, thanks to a roving geology student from the University of California. While studying rock formations, the student discovered that the rocky hillside farm on which Pearl lives, three miles east of Napa, contains one of the greatest pumice deposits in California. An Oakland company has promised Pearl a royalty on all pumice mined, planning to use it in lightweight concrete in building construction. Because of the limited supply in California, much of the mineral is shipped in from Washington.

A difficult feat of tree moving was accomplished at Laguna Beach when several valuable trees were unloaded at the hillside home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Reisner on Diamond street. Their transportation required a four-day trip to bring them from Beverly Hills. The trees are valued at $2000, and the largest, a thirty-foot pittosporum, is 40 years of age. The trees were taken on a long journey as tunnels and low bridges had to be avoided and in Los Angeles county the trees were moved at night because of traffic congestion. R. W. Hamsher, specialist in transportation of trees, directed the work.

Lemon shipments are on the increase, according to the San Antonio Fruit Growers' Exchange, eight cars having been moved out of Pomona district in the last couple of weeks, making a total of sixty-two cars for the season. One hundred and twenty cars of navels were also shipped for a grand total of 844 for the season.

W. Turney Fox, assistant attorney of Los Angeles, has been appointed superior judge of Los Angeles County, to succeed the late Judge Raymond I. Turney.

Make the Weather What You Want It

1.—With a raging blizzard, or a scorching sun raising havoc outdoors, the indoor weather in this room is cozy, comfortable and healthful. The air conditioner provides perfect air the year round, regardless of outdoor weather's eccentricities.

2.—No longer will the tired business man be tempted to run out on his office force and flee from the hot and sultry summer days. This air conditioner, installed in his office in place of the familiar radiator is the answer.

3.—Physicians, always alert to welcome any scientific or engineering achievement that will aid them in their work of relieving human suffering, hail air conditioning as a decidedly progressive step. No longer will patients be forced to undergo the added suffering brought on by hot and sultry weather, or by the injurious dry indoor air of the colder seasons. A air conditioner is shown here installed in a hospital room, so unobtrusive and compact it takes up little space even in the cramped quarters of the room.

4.—Turn on the heat, or turn on the cold! This air conditioning unit does both, and to complete its responsibility of supplying perfect indoor weather the year round, it keeps Old Man Humidity on the run in the hot and sultry seasons

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ONE of the famous remarks attributed to that great American humorist, Mark Twain, which is familiar to most of his fellow-countrymen was to the effect that "Everybody talks about the weather but nobody ever does anything about it." However true that statement may have been once, it's passe now. For modern science and modern engineering have "done something about it," and now mankind can literally "make his own weather"—that is, the kind of weather he wants to have in his own home or place of business.

Of course, away back in the early history of mankind he learned how to make his habitation warm when it was too cold outside for comfort. In recent years our movie palaces have pointed the way to making their interiors comfortably cool when it's too hot outside for comfort. But up to now the average householder couldn't afford to follow the lead of the movie houses and install a "cooling system" as well as a "heating system" in his home.

So it is one of the triumphs of modern science and modern engineering that now anyone who has electricity at his command also has at his command perfect indoor weather for all climes and localities. And this is something more than regulation of heat and cold, for the new activity of science, described in the two words "air conditioning," means the correction of air to a point most desirable for personal comfort, with just the right amount of warmth or coolness, correct moisture content or relative humidity, removal of dust particles and forced circulation without draft.

Since it does include all those things, another favorite expression "It's not the heat; it's the humidity" is due to go by the boards. For it was that very thing, humidity, which started research engineers on the track that has brought about the development of air conditioning equipment which embodies the functions of heating, cooling, drying, moistening, cleansing and circulating of air. And the beauty of it is that the air conditioner, smaller than the average heat radiator, is so compactly built that it may be installed in any room, apartment, office, hospital, or place of business.

More than that the conditioners are so simple in operation and require so little supervision that two small switches on the end of the cabinet may be compared to the mythical lever which the cartoonists show the weather man operating when he wants to supply cold, heat, sultriness, dryness, rain, wind or calm. As a matter of fact the conditioner goes the weather man one better.

The conditioner can't guess wrong. It pulls in the air of a room, corrects it as it should be to provide personal comfort regardless of outdoor weather conditions, then sends it into the room so quietly occupants are unaware of the conditioner's operation. To give to indoor air that delicate touch of perfection, air conditioners should operate in rooms where the windows are kept closed so the correction of the room atmosphere isn't dissipated into the outdoors.

This factor brings up an interesting revelation of the general public's regard for fresh air. Fresh air isn't what it's cracked up to be, according to our foremost scientists. In many cases it may be more harmful than the average indoor air.

Air conditioners provide an answer to one of the major demands and quests of mankind—comfort. In giving perfect indoor weather the year round, despite changing seasons and erratic activities of temperature and humanity they open the way for industrial and financial development of the tropics and the Orient, where white men swelter in misery under the depressing humity, and laborers collapse from the effect of hard, manual activity coupled with heat and sultriness.

The farmer who spends every daylight hour in the summer in the sun-baked fields will have respite, and his wife, accustomed to a hard working existence among the pots, pans and cooking range in the kitchen, will blossom out a changed woman.

Business men who should wear their coats and keep their ties tied will be able to work as energetically and as smartly appearing in the summer as in winter, and their clerks and stenographers will have the alertness and desire to please that helps so much in retaining the patronage of old customers, and building up good will with new.

The answer to the brighter existence held out by aerologists to followers of almost every activity is based on the fact that despite the hottest temperatures and most depressing humidity of the working hours a man or woman can stand them day after day if they are able to sleep soundly in real comfort and repose, instead of fitfully and uncomfortably.

When air conditioning experts talk about homes and buildings with closed windows, a chorus of public thought sings out with these interjections: "What about carbon dioxide? How about headaches brought on by closed, stuffy rooms? How about that depressing feeling that overcomes us when we don't get enough fresh air? You forget what doctors say about fresh air."

The answer is on file in the public documents of the federal government in Washington. Privately many members of the medical profession have known for some years that factors other than a lack of so-called fresh air causes headaches and nausea in crowded places. But few have had the courage to be outspoken in the face of general belief and upset the belief imbedded in the public consciousness for so many years.

It is interesting to know how philosophers and scientists of centuries ago regarded air and how their findings stack up with modern scientific developments. Aristotle, founder of a school of thought that swayed the thinking of mankind for more than 1,000 years, regarded air as one of nature's four cardinal elements, the others being fire, earth and water.

Up until 1757 little was known about air. Then, Dr. Joseph Black, who was experimenting with chemicals, made the discovery of a gas he called "fixed air," now known as carbon dioxide. In 1775, Joseph Priestly isolated oxygen, calling it "dephlogisticated air," and thus, for the first time mankind began to have some exact knowledge of atmosphere.

Lavoisier, a leading student of his period, a few years later discovered carbon dioxide would extinguish flame. He concluded, therefore, that an excess amount of carbon dioxide formed by breathing would contaminate indoor air. His standing and reputation brought ready acceptance for this theory, and it was but a natural step to the premise that fresh air, without excessive carbon dioxide and with an abundance of oxygen, was necessary for human well being.

A small number of scientists refused to concur in Lavoisier's theory but most scientists, engineers and medical men held their tongues in the belief nothing was to be gained by the voicing of contrary opinions.

Among the first public reports of these early theories is that of Dr. R. R. Sayers, surgeon of the United States public health service, and chief surgeon of the Department of Commerce's bureau of mines, a division that knows as much if not more about pure and impure air than any research organization in the world.

In reprint No. 1150 of the public reports, Doctor Sayers states: "It was observed by many investigators that it was not until the oxygen content of the respiratory air fell below 10 per cent that animals began to breathe with difficulty. Friedlander and Herter concluded from the results of their experiments that inhaling of 20 per cent carbon dioxide for several hours has no poisonous effect. Not until a mixture of gas containing 30 per cent or more of carbon dioxide was introduced did they find an appearance of depression. Leblanc pointed out that under conditions in which the carbon dioxide content of the air increases considerably, in lecture rooms, theaters, etc., the reduction of oxygen content is small and very seldom falls below 20 per cent, while the carbon dioxide content very seldom exceeds 1 per cent."

The same facts have been established by other investigators of standing since that time. W. Mehl, an engineer, in 1903 announced definitely the nonexistence of a "breath poison." He asserted the carbon dioxide content of a room is not a correct measure for the necessity of ventilation.

The scientific findings definitely established that it is the combination of heat and humidity that is so depressing and injurious to mental and physical alertness, and the consequent damage to business and industrial efficiency brought on by personal discomfort. With these facts, engineers working on conditioning of indoor air found that it is easy to be comfortable in a room in which the customary thermometer shows a temperature of 90 degrees, if the humidity is lowered.

Leading economists, engineers and builders have hailed air conditioning as the next big industry of the nation, an industry supplying a product that will take a place along with the telephone, automatic refrigeration and the automobile in general acceptance and necessity. They point out also that air conditioning is a new achievement that replaces practically nothing now in use, finds for itself a place in popular demand, and opens the way to increased manufacturing, sales and installation activity.

BEAUTY A TOWN ASSET

In spite of the apparent commercialism of the age in which we live, it is evident to any observer that the American people are rapidly developing a greater appreciation of the beautiful. This is not confined to the wealthier classes, but extends to the great masses in the towns and villages and in rural districts.

New towns and new sections of the older ones are being laid out with wider streets, with provision for larger lawns, more trees, shrubbery and flowers, and a more attractive setting generally.

New houses show better architecture and greater harmony with their surroundings, while unsightly yard fences have largely disappeared. The net result of all these modern developments is beauty. And aside from the satisfaction which it affords the eye, it pays in dollars and cents.

Beautiful cities, towns and villages attract people. They attract permanent residents, they attract tourists, and they attract trade. It is natural that a person selecting a trading center will choose a town that is beautiful and clean, in preference to one that is unsightly and dirty, if other conditions are anything near equal.

Therefore, it behooves the residents of any community to make the most of their opportunities for improving the appearance of the place in which they live. Beauty and cleanliness are among a town's best assets.

EARLY CONSERVATION

There has been a great deal of attention given to conservation of natural resources during the past few years, and many may be under the impression that this movement is comparatively new. But such is not the case.

Someone has discovered in the records of the Massachusetts Colony a court order 300 years old, which directed the conservation of timber. This order, dated March 29, 1626, decreed as follows:

"That for the preventing of inconveniences as do and may befall the plantation by want of timber, that no man of what condition soever sell or transport any manner of works or frames for houses, planks, boards, shalops, boats, canoes or what so ever may tende to the destruction of timber aforesaid; how little so ever the quantities be; without the consent, approbation, and liking of the Governour and Counsill."

Commenting on this display of foresight by the early settlers of the Massachusetts Colony, the Atlanta Georgian says: "The early law may seem to have been entirely uncalled for, but the framers were looking ahead decades and centuries. They were right, as time has proved, but their descendants forgot the warning thus uttered by the fathers and little by little wastage took the place of careful use. Today great stretches of the country lie denuded of their forests. Every year there are felled enough trees to cover an area equal to all of Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Jersey combined."

Many government and private agencies are striving to check this depletion of our timber, and every citizen should lend his whole-hearted support to the conservation movement. We should emulate the spirt of the pioneers of 300 years ago.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE STILL IN THE MAKING

Teachers of English who cling to all the ancient rules were given a thoroughgoing rebuke in a recent lecture by Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, one of the greatest living authorities and editor of a leading dictionary.

Among other things, the doctor countenanced ending a sentence with a preposition, approved the split infinitive, testified to the forcefulness of a moderate amount of slang, and otherwise played havoc with many pet traditions of the pedants.

The English language, like all others, is still in the making and will continue to grow. Spelling, pronunciation, grammar and everything pertaining to the language have undergone many modfications through the centuries. The rules and usages sanctioned by the best writers and speakers will always constitute the highest authority in any particular period.

It is important to learn the rules, but it is often as important to know when to break them for the sake of clarity and vigor of speech.

THE LIFE-GIVING SUN

Of all ancient religious rites in which visible objects were venerated the worship of the sun was the most logical, as has been demonstrated by modern science. All life on earth depends upon the beneficent rays of the sun, without which both animals and plants would sicken and die. In recent years the particular light waves which have a reviving and healing effect upon living organisms have been identified and means have been employed for their practical use. These rays are called ultra-violet rays, and are invisible.

An important discovery was made a few years ago when it was found that ordinary window glass stops the health-giving rays. Then science developed a glass made of fused quartz, through which these waves pass freely. Now a type of artificial light which produces the rays has been perfected, whereby the same effect may be obtained whether the sun shines or not.

Ultra-violet rays, either natural or artificial, are used for the prevention and cure of rickets in children, and also serve to make adults to a great extent immune from colds and pneumonia, as well as to correct many weaknesses which make them susceptible to other diseases.

Thus the life-giving properties of the sun have been made to serve mankind in ways undreamed of by the early sun-worshippers.

BABE RUTH'S SALARY

Since Babe Ruth finally compromised with Colonel Ruppert, boss of the New York Yankees, agreeing to a cut in salary from $80,000 to $75,000 a year, the usual discussion of the home run king's value has been going on. Colonel Ruppert wanted to cut him to $70,000, but the Bambino thought he ought to draw as much as President Hoover, at least, and he won out.

On its face, the amount paid Ruth seems ridiculously large for a man whose chief ability is that of swatting a baseball over the fence. It is five times as much, for instance, as the pay of the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

On the other hand, while there are a good many lawyers who might acceptably serve as Chief Justice, there is no other man in the world who can wield a bat like Babe Ruth. Thus it is another illustration of the law of supply and demand in practical operation.

Rightly or wrongly, the public is willing to bestow its highest monetary rewards on those who afford it exceptional entertainment, as may be seen by the fabulous sums received by champion pugilists, leading opera singers, favorite movie and radio stars, and the rest. The drawing power of these top-notchers makes their employment by managers profitable in spite of the high salaries paid.

For several years Babe Ruth has been the best drawing card in baseball. As a business proposition he is worth all that is paid him, and nobody knows this better than the owner of the Yankees.

"GRAND HOTEL" PLEASING GARY THEATRE PATRONS

"Grand Hotel," which has been the sensation of all Northern California for the past month because of its remarkably successful run at the Geary Theatre in San Francisco, will end its stay in the Bay city on Saturday night, April 9. Thus Vicki Baum's great stage triumph is now in its last two weeks in San Francisco, and this news will doubtless be followed by a grand rush on the part of those who have not yet seen the thrililng spectacle.

There can be no extension of the engagement because of other bookings. Belasco and Curran have been rewarded by a magnificent box office patronage for their courage and foresight in bringing Miss Baum's play to the Coast.

Its eighteen scenes, its kaleidoscopic cross section of life, love and hate, its seventy players and six featured principals, Olga Baclanova, Ian Keith, Arnold Korff, Frank Reicher, Christian Rub and Dorothy Tree, all combine to make this one of the finest stage entertainments of the generation.

April 11 the Geary will have as its attraction the London success, "Let us Divorce," with Rose Hobart and Ralph Forbes in the title roles. Ruth Chatterton is directing the play.

With no raw material to work on, uplifters will hardly enjoy heaven.

"Did you have the car out last night?"

"Yes, Dad; I took some of the boys for a run around."

WHAT HAS TRANSPIRED

Joe Barry, country youth in New York, ekes out a living as caretaker in a poor rooming house and accordion player in Louie Bertolini's restaurant. Lured by the open country, he spends a night in the fields, near Newburgh. Bertolini discharges him. Friendless and "broke," he is offered $10,000 by a man he knows only as "Martin" to impersonate a liquor runner facing arrest. It means the penitentiary, but Joe is desperate. He defers decision until the next night, and is given $1,000 "on account." Next day Joe deposits $800 in country banks, giving his name as Joseph Bradley. Outside a circus tent he sees an accordion and is tempted to play it. A girl, Sue Dayton, niece of the owner, who admires the music, urges him to join the circus, but Joe says he must first return to New York "on business." He has decided to refuse "Martin's" offer. In his room four men accost him. Bewildered, Joe sees the men, who are detectives, find large amounts of money, a machine gun, and two revolvers. Next day, under arrest, Joe is identified by men who had seen him the night before near Newburgh, when two prohibition agents were killed and robbed. Joe finds he is charged with their murder and robbery. He realizes "Martin's" object—to have him found guilty of the murders, executed, and the case closed. A man known as "Fullhouse," waiter at Bertolini's, hurts Joe's case by his evidence. Joe keeps silent as to his previous day's doings, fearing to embarrass Sue Dayton. His cellmate, Hymie Fradke, gives Joe $20. Next day Fradke, having secured a revolver, "shoots it out" with prison guards, and is killed. In the confusion Joe escapes. Using the $20 Fradke had given him, he flees New York, draws some of the money he had deposited and finds the Dayton circus, looking upon it as a refuge. He is engaged as a performer, playing the accordion, with Sue his partner in the act.

Closer he moved, unnoticed in the attention of the audience upon her gyrations as the amiable old Percheron loped about the ring and the band played the music of her new number; the lilt and sway of it got into Joe's blood. He forgot about the tent, he forgot that he never had done anything like this before in all his life, he forgot everything except to sing it to her, to sing it as if he meant it. An electrician threw a switch and the tent was dark, save for the flood lights bathing the ring, and the spots which centered upon her and upon him, as he made his entrance, his fingers drawing the very soul from the beloved instrument within his grasp, his lips sending forth the words of a love song that he could sing because it was his song, too.

And then the mounting roar of applause, for her and for him—at last he vaguely realized that they were outside and that she had leaped from the back of her horse to grasp him by the arms with strong, excited fingers.

"Oh, you were wonderful!" she exclaimed.

And he could only talk of her excellence, and ask her why he shouldn't do a thing well when she was helping him. Then there was Slats Beeton and Clown alley again. After a long time Uncle Dan, still very excited, ducked under the side wall.

"Better get your grip just as soon as you're through here," said Uncle Dan. "Take it down to Car One Hundred and One. That's where you'll sleep. Ask for Bill, the porter." Then Uncle Dan grinned. "Sue's waiting for you—says you might not know the way to the cars."

"Yes, sir."

Still he was allowing himself to drift, these were treasured minutes which went so swiftly, each begging that another follow. At last he was outside, upon the moon-swept lot and beside her. Sue was dressed now as he first had seen her.

"Going down to the cars?" she asked. "I thought maybe I'd better show you the way—you might not know circus signals."

Joe had taken her arm, as if to guide her over the roughness of the lot; the warmth of her flesh had crept through to the palm of his hand and was thrilling onward to his heart. The girl did not draw away. Onward they went, past the place where her little tent had been. The circus was dismantling in a dozen places. For the first time, Joe really understood its magic, the speed and system by which it worked. No one seemed to hurry, no one ran about shouting orders, no one gave an indication of excitement; yet it was everywhere.

Onward Sue and Joe went in that silence which is so often eloquence. Sometimes the girl broke it by a few bars of her song; often she only walked beside him in the contentment of newfound friendship; Joe's hand had moved from its awkward position at her elbow. His arm was linked with hers now. At last, as a jumbled glare showed from a short distance ahead, she chuckled and reverted to a previous philosophy.

"Isn't it queer?" she asked. "So many people come to the circus feeling sorry for us, because we're show folk and wanderers. Really! Actually, Joe—" she used the name in casual friendliness—"I've seen them peek in the cookhouse, just to see if we eat like other people."

They were at the loading runs now, where a tangle of men and horses and paraphernalia showed itself in the gleam of the carbides. "Shall we go to the grease joint?"

"The which?"

"Oh, it isn't as bad as it sounds. That's the circus name for the lunch counter. Smoky Todd runs it."

Through the maze of activity they went, and to sandwiches and coffee. At last Sue Dayton turned toward the dimly outlined sleeping cars.

"I guess you're tired," she said.

Joe Barry raised a hand across weary eyes.

"Yes—I am a little tired," he confessed.

"So am I. The excitement and everything. Now that I look back on it, I guess we were both pretty shaky and stage-struck in the ring, don't you? Posing that way and stage acting, as we call it, is a lot different from straight circus work."

"I suppose so. I guess I was terrible."

"Not half as bad as I was. I was all hands!" she confessed. "Anyway, that was just a dress rehearsal. We'll both be loads better tomorrow."

Joe did not answer. He knew there could be no tomorrow. Sue Dayton talked happily on.

"I'm just dead, aren't you? Uncle Dan told you where you'd bunk, didn't he? In the Hundred and One car? It's just down two coaches. This is my car here." She held forth a hand. "Good night, Joe," she said.

"Good—good night, Sue," came in a mumble. He caught her hand, longing to press it in both of his, to raise it to his lips and hold it there. But he only clasped it formally and said again: "Good night, Sue."

She swung to the steps and within the car. Joe Barry walked slowly back along the train, stumbling in the shadows. At last he halted, in the fringe of darkness, a car-length away from the loading runs.

Tomorrow! It clutched at Joe's heart. He could only think of tomorrow as related to the past, the fleeting, invisible things which chased him, the clicking wires, the reward sheets and description circulars. Joe Barry raised his hand to his eyes with that old, tired gesture. Tomorrow—and then a new thought came.

What would she think tomorrow, when she came on the lot to find him gone? Without explanation. Without a word of gratitude for all she and Uncle Dan had done for him. Suddenly he wondered if a part of his supposed sacrifice had not been egotism, after all. Something began to whisper swiftly within his brain. It wasn't anything to them what he had been and what he had done—as long as they didn't know. As long as he was faithful to them and repaid them for their kindness by giving everything that was in him, what difference did it make? He had been thinking about himself all this time, not about her and that act she had set her heart on. Besides, on a circus like this, moving from town to town, nobody might ever know. Maybe if he stayed here something would turn up that would let him prove his innocence—that was it! He wasn't taking advantage of them by staying. Maybe it was the thing to do, to hide out, and keep his brain working to figure out just how that trick had been worked on him, and who had done it. Besides, he was innocent, wasn't he? It wasn't as if he had really committed a crime—

From far ahead, a double whistle sounded, the "highball" signal of the engineer. Slowly the train began to move. Just before it reached dangerous speed, a panting form overtook Car One Hundred and One and climbed aboard its platform.

Languages of the World

Whitaker's almanac estimates that among European languages, English is the mother tongue of the largest number, 180,000,000; Russian second with 140,000,000; then German, 80,000,000; French, 70,000,000; Spanish and Italian, each 50,000,000; Portuguese, 25,000,000. Among all the languages of the world, Chinese is spoken by the largest number, about 400,000,000 if the various dialects are included. Doctor Vizetelly's figures, as given in the World almanac, are rather different. He gives English as spoken by 160,000,000 and understood and used by 60,000,000 more who do not consider it their native speech; German spoken by 90,000,000 and understood by 20,000,000 more; Russian, 90,000,000; French spoken by 45,000,000 but understood and spoken by at least 75,000,000 more; Spanish, 55,000,000; Italian, 45,000,000; Portuguese, 30,000,000.

Saving Her From Herself

The late David Belasco, at a time some years ago when Isadora Duncan was in hard luck, said to a New York art critic:

"Isadora, like all great artists, is too generous. Her generosity is prodigal, reckless and ruinous. I think I'll dress up as a beggar and call at her apartment, and what I collect may keep her till she gets another engagement."—Springfield Union.

Where the Story of Transport Will Be Shown

FROM the time that man first learned to float upon a hollow log and ride astride a horse's back until he learned to propel floating palaces thousands of miles across the seas and hurl motor cars and airplanes four miles a minute through space has been million of years.

But the whole story will be told in the compass of a few hours and a hundred acres at Chicago's 1933 World's Fair—A Century of Progress.

Most of the theater for the travel and transport show of 1933 has already been built. It consists of the travel and transport building with its "sky hung" dome and a mile strip of shore along Lake Michigan near the heart of Chicago.

Today visitors gaze in wonder at Railroad Dome—a gargantuan structure rising 125 feet high and 200 feet across from its 310-foot base. The dome of the Washington Capitol or of St. Peter's in Rome could be comfortably tucked beneath its hanging roof. Architects explain that the roof is suspended by steel cables hung from a circle of 12 steel towers and anchored on the exterior to slabs of concrete each as big as a house. It is the first application to architecture of the suspension bridge principle.

The dome "breathes"! Expansion joints enable the roof to rise and fall, expand and contract as much as six feet in circumference with changes in temperature, wind velocity, rain and snowfall.

Use of the suspension bridge principle has obviated the use of pillars, arches or other interior supports and given Railroad Dome the largest unobstructed area ever enclosed beneath a roof.

Here spectators will see Stephenson's Rocket, the first successful steam locomotive, which has been loaned to the exposition by the British government—and other historic engines and cars.

East of the Travel and Transport building visitors will view a pageant of men and women from all lands and ages traveling and hauling goods in the principal ways of which history has knowledge. The procession will move by land, water and air. Ox team and log dugout will give place to stagecoach and sailing vessel, these in turn to primitive railroad train and steamship, these last to ultra-modern electric locomotive, speed boat, racing automobile, monoplane and dirigible—all to the accompaniment of music and drama.

Special phases of railroad history will be shown in the dome and the south portion of Transportation Hall, 1,000 feet long and windowless, adjoining it. Marine exhibits will be shown in a section of a modern de-luxe ocean liner complete from B deck to captain's bridge.

The north section and at least two separate exhibit buildings will be used to tell the story of motor transportation. In the building which the General Motors company is erecting, one will see carried on the entire operation of assembling motor cars.

CHILDREN'S EVENING STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

BILLY MINK and Little Joe Otter do most of their fishing in the Laughing Brook or the Smiling Pool and are content with rather small fish, so long as there are plenty of them. Buster Bear is another fisherman who does all his fishing in the Laughing Brook. This is because Buster does not want to leave the Green Forest. His cousin, Bobby Coon, is also quite content with what he can catch in the Laughing Brooks. Longlegs the Heron often fishes along the edge of the Big River, but he, too, is content with minnows and pollywogs.

But it is not so with Plunger the Fish Hawk. No, indeed. He wastes no time on the little fish of the Laughing Brook or the Smiling Pool. Once in a while he fishes in the Smiling Pool when his keen eyes discover a fish there which is worth catching, but most of his fishing is done in the Big River. Every day he and Mrs. Plunger fly over to the Big River. One goes up the Big River and one goes down. To their broad wings miles are nothing, and so, high in the air above the shining water, they swing back and forth from shore to shore for long distances, their wonderful eyes fixed on the water.

Now, it is a fact which perhaps you do not know that from high in the air, looking straight down into the water, you can see much farther below the surface than you can when close to the water. So the keen eyes of Plunger can look right down into the Big River and see the fish swimming there. When he sees one near enough to the top he closes his wings and drops like a shot, with his great claws spread ready to seize the fish. But he does not always succeed. Oh, my, no! Did you ever know a fisherman who always succeed? I never did. Plunger is just like all fishermen, missing his fish quite as often and perhaps oftener than he catches one. And he is like all good fisehmen in another thing, the possession of patience.

On this particular morning Plunger was having no luck at all. Perhaps it was because he wasn't as patient as usual. The truth is he was rather impatient. He wanted a fish, a big fish, not for himself, but for Mrs. Plunger. Why didn't he leave it to Mrs. Plunger to catch her own breakfast? I'll tell you why. It was because Mrs. Plunger was very busy with household duties. There were three eggs in that nest over in the Green Forest, and Mrs. Plunger was sitting on them to keep them warm, so that by and by they would hatch into three little Plungers. So Plunger wanted a particularly nice fish to take to her to show her how much he thought of her.

But it seemed as if all the particularly nice fish were staying at the bottom of the Big River that morning. Several times he saw splendid fat fish almost near enough to the top, but not quite. Twice he shot down, only to spread his wings just before he reached the water and then flap back up in the air. Both times he had seen just in time that the fish were too deep in the water and he would simply scare them and get a bath for nothing. Once he had discovered a fish taking a sun bath close to the surface, but even as he had steadied himself for the long, swift plunge the fish had dived. Perhaps it had been frightened by the shadow of Plunger.

He was just about ready to think that he and Mrs. Plunger would have no breakfast that day when he saw deep down in the water the biggest, fattest fish he had yet seen. It was lazily swimming or at times remaining quite still.

"That fellow will bear watching," muttered Plunger. "He hasn't anything in particular to do, and perhaps he will come up for a sun bath. My, but he would taste good! I think I'll wait a bit."

So Plunger waited and watched. His way of waiting was to swing in little circles round and round right over the spot where the fish was, only, of course, he was high in the air. Round and round and round and round swung Plunger, never once taking his eyes from that fish down below. Several times he was tempted to give up and try his luck elsewhere, but he didn't. Finally patience won, as patience almost always will. Slowly the big fish came nearer and nearer to the surface. At last he was only a few inches below. Plunger steadied himself for an instant to make sure that his aim was good. Then he closed his wings and shot down like an arrow. There was a great splash as he struck the water and disappeared. A few seconds later he burst out in a shower of spray and flapped heavily up. Clutched in his great claws was the big fish, struggling helplessly.

TASTY SANDWICHES

SANDWICHES that are filling enough for a good meal are the kind to put up for an active youngster or a picnic party that will have a day of fishing or hiking.

Lamb Sandwich.

Chop cold roast lamb fine, season with salt, pepper and tomato catsup. Add to this mayonnaise dressing to which chopped olives have been mixed and spread on buttered bread.

Elite Sandwich.

Take three-fourths of a cupful each of finely minced cold lamb and celery, add one tablespoonful of minced mustard pickle, two tablespoonfuls of shredded watercress, salt and paprika and a pinch of curry. Use one rounding tablespoonful of this mixture for each sandwich and a crisp leaf of lettuce dipped into french dressing. Spread on whole wheat bread buttered.

Lamb and Pepper Sandwich.

To half a cupful of minced lamb add one tablespoonful of finely chopped green pepper. Mix with mayonnaise or boiled dressing to spread.

Lamb and Mint.

Take one-half cupful of chopped lamb, one and one-half tablespoonfuls cooked green peas, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of diced celery, mayonnaise, one teaspoonful of chopped mint. Mix and use on split, buttered dinner rolls.

Lamb and Jelly Sandwich.

Split rolls and spread with currant jelly with mint. Lay on a thin slice of roast lamb and cover with a buttered top of the roll. To the currant jelly, beat until smooth, add the grated rind of an orange, salt, and two tablespoonfuls of finely minced mint.

Mutton Sandwich.

To one cupful of chopped mutton add two tablespoonfuls or more of chopped cucumber pickle, season to taste. Mix with a boiled salad dressing and spread on the sandwich bread. Horseradish instead of pickle may be used for variation.

A type of beetle known as the bombardier, common in some districts of England, expels a volatile liquid that, exploding, leaves a tiny cloud of smoke—actually a fiery breath—to confound its enemies.

THIS BRIDGE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THIS bridge is much too much for me.
Just ask my wife, and she'll agree.
I am a conservationist
I bid too little when I'm strong,
Or when I'm weak I bid too strong.
Concerning trumps, though wives insist
The thing to do is lead them out.
I say "insist," I should say "shout."

We get along a day or two
As well as married people do,
And then some bridge-hounds happen in,
And that's the way that wars begin.
About so long they fuss and fidge,
Then say, "What say a little bridge?"
What say? I wouldn't dare to say
The things I think of right away.

I'm not an intellectual.
I can't learn bridge, I never shall.
All I can talk about is books,
The market, and how business looks,
And world events, and news of friends,
And what the government intends,
Inconsequentials such as those.
Oh, well, I'm hopeless, I suppose.

Pretty Dinner Frock

Simple yet a gown that any girl would be glad to have is this afternoon or informal dinner frock worn by Constance Bennett, RKO Pathe star. It is of white crepe roma and the abbreviated sleeves are sable trimmed. A narrow belt of salf material outlines the fitted waistline. It will be noted that the blouse is less molded to the figure than in the dresses of the previous season.

TANFORAN RACES TO BE BROADCAST

For the first time in the history of western racing, a complete description—containing all the color, crowd noise and attendant incidents—of a thoroughbreds' contest is to be broadcast from the Tanforan racetrack during the spring meeting which began yesterday, Thursday, March 31. The description will come direct from the racetrack by remote control and be broadcast by Station KTAB of San Francisco.

This novel idea, first tried at the Thistledown race course in Cleveland, will bring to racing fans throughout the state and within reach of KTAB on their radio dials, the actual running of the contest. Broadcasting of the daily events will begin at 4 o'clock or thereabouts, with only the single race scheduled at that time being sent over the ether waves.

The broadcasting of the daily race from Tanforan will be under the direction of Ernie Smith, sports announcer for KTAB, with the description of the actual race, from bugle call to finish, to be given by Joe Hernandez.

Station KTAB broadcasts daily from 7 A. M. to 1 A. M. on a frequency of 560 kilocycles. Whether it will be the feature event of the card that will reach the radio audience or whether it will be some other race, has not been determined as yet. Arrangement of the racing program, as outlined by J. Samuel Rothert, racing secretary, may bring about the feature contest at the scheduled time of the daily broadcast.

On opening day the featured event at Tanforan was the Inaugural handicap, a race at one mile and seventy yards, bringing together a collection of handicap horses. On Saturday another handicap, this time a sprint over six furlongs, will be featured, while the decoration of the card on April 9 is the first of the six advertised stake events, the Tanforan Spring Special.

SIDELIGHTS

The Bureau of Labor Statistics further contributes to the public welfare by announcing that single women buy twice as many corsets as married ones, also from two to five times as many silk chemises, silk nightgowns and silk stockings. How could we manage if the goverment didn't keep us informed about such vital matters?

Signora Sterratti, a widow of Milan, Italy, was arrested for marrying a young man whose parents declared he was half-witted. With all our laws, we do not seem to have any such restrictions in this land of the free and home of the brave.

According to the Mexican newspaper El Universal, all the revolutions fought in Latin-America during the last 100 years cost only about $418,000,000, or about as much as the Allies spent every four days during the World War. Backers of Latin-American revolutions seem to get more for their money than those who finance wars elsewhere.

On a honeymoon motor trip a Georgia young woman driver met three other cars within the space of 100 yards and hit them all. A newspaper dispatch describes her as "a nervous bride." On the contrary, we should say her aim was uncommonly good to make a perfect score like that.

Alphonse Dube, a modern Massachusetts disciple of Darius Green, is said to have committed suicide because a contraption with flapping wings which he had invented would not fly. The sad part of the story is that if the orthodox view be correct, Alphonse is not likely to do any flying in the next world, either.

Mrs. Phenie Ownby, mayor of Broken Arrow, Okla., has little patience with the town's high flyers who don't pay for water furnished by the municipality, and gives notice as follows: "Some that owe us give big parties, but can't or won't pay their water bills. You'd better pay, or you won't be able to wash your dishes after the next party."

If you were a young fellow, would you marry a woman 60 years old? In replying to a questionnaire 90 per cent of the male students of the University of Oregon said they would—if she had a million dollars.

Even a rooster has the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, including the right to crow whenever he feels like it, according to a decision by Judge Estes of Oklahoma City, who dismissed a complaint of neighbors against a citizen whose rooster was considered too noisy. The judge is said to have a choice flock of poultry of his own.

LABOR LEADER PRAISES CITY COUNCILMAN BODIEN

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 11, 1932.
Arthur Bodien,
28 Rice St., Daly City, Cal.
Dear Brother Bodien:

I am writing you on the eve of your campaign for re-election to the office of City Councilman of Daly City, to extend a word of encouragement to an old friend and shopmate, and to express the hope that you will be returned to office at the coming election.

I can recall the time when you and I worked together in the shop twenty-five years ago, and your record as a union man has been maintained all these years, and I am sure the citizens of Daly City will not make a mistake if they continue you as City Councilman.

It has always been a pleasure to union men to see their fellowmen elevated to positions of trust, and the trust fulfilled. From all reports coming from union men living in your city, you have lived up to our expectation, and if there is anything that I can do to assist you all you have to do is to let me know.

Sincerely and fraternally yours,
DANIEL P. HAGGERTY,
President San Francisco Labor Council.

GOVERNOR ROLPH PROCLAIMS APRIL SIXTH ARMY DAY

Proclaiming April 6, 1932 Army Day, Governor James Rolph, Jr., recently called on all citizens of the state of California to observe the day with a state-wide display of the National Flag, and the conduct of patriotic exercises having for their aim an expression of esteem and admiration for the United States Army.

Military ceremonies, exhibitions and demonstrations will be held at the Presidios of San Francisco and Monterey, Mather, March and Rockwell Fields at Sacramento, Riverside and San Diego, respectively, and at Fort MacArthur, San Pedro, and Fort Rosecrans, San Diego, to which the public is invited. At many of the posts "open house" will be held by the Army and an opportunity given to those attending to look over a typical Army barracks, and secure first hand information as to how the army lives.

ARMY DAY TO BE OBSERVED BY LEGION POSTS, APRIL 6

American Legion Posts throughout the state are preparing to observe Army Day, April 6, with patriotic exercises in their communities. The day has a double significance as it also marks the fifteenth anniversary of the entrance of the United States in the World War. A military program will be held at all army posts in California to observe the occasion. Governor Rolph has issued a proclamation urging that the day be given recognition because of the important part the Army has played in the development of the West through surveys, maps and the building of roads, bridges and inland waterways.

Excessive horse-power under the hood is dangerous if not accompanied by corresponding horse sense under the hat.

M. E. Beniger had 63,720 scrambled eggs when the big freight truck he was driving overturned and rolled down an eight-foot embankment near Hamilton, Mo.

At Blackpool, Eng., there was so much coughing in the county court that Judge Bradley announced that at 3 p. m. he would set aside one minute for coughing.

After being hurt three times in auto smashups, George Kedsie of Palatine, Ill., sold his motor car and now walks three miles to the railway station.

Mrs. Charles Marden, 72, of Pawtucket, R. I., refused to leave the house she lived in for years when it caught fire recently, and firemen had to carry her out forcibly.

SPLINTERS

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME 4 FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1932 NUMBER 36

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

We overheard this at the post office:

Lady: "Isn't it just terrible; I've taught my pet poodle everything I know, and he's still dumb."

"STERLING" Wall Board, the Wall board of satisfaction.

It isn't how good looking you are when you smile, it's how sincere you are.

Raio Fans

"Tune in" on this newspaper and get the latest about Building Materials.

Modern Shopper: "Haye you anything snappy in rubber bands?"

Assistant: "No, but we have something catchy in fly-paper."

Gentleman: "Are you sure this room is quiet?"

Landlady: "Quiet? Why it never makes a sound."

If you are planning to "Build or Repair," see us for lumber and shingles.

Bobby: "Father, is it correct to say that a storm is brewing?"

Colonel: "No, my son; it never rains anything but water."

"ABERDEEN," the Coal that satisfies.

First Father: "Your son beat up my son, who is smaller. You should lecture him for hitting a smaller boy."

Second Father: "I think you are quite wrong. Your son needs to be told not to sass a bigger boy."

EVERYTHING in Builders' Hardware.

"I'll give you just three days to pay your rent."

"All right, I'll take the Fourth of July, Easter, and Christmas."

Bob: "Miss Marian —or—Marian, I mean, I've know you long enough to drop the 'Miss,' haven't I?"

Marian: "Yes, I think you have. What prefix do you wish to substitute?"

Wealthy Parent: "What is your prospects if you marry my daughter?"

Poor Suitor: "Excellent, if I marry your daughter, sir."
